Energising Innovation and Investment within the Global Medtech Industry

The 2009 International Medtech Symposium will bring international leaders from industry, finance, government and academia together for a two-day symposium on the future of the medtech. The focus will be on new innovation drivers and opportunities for growing medtech international value chains.

Showcased will be world renowned companies and highly respected speakers all committed to further developing the global medtech environment. Some highlights of the symposium include key presentations by SMEs on new and exciting technologies and a VIP dinner reception that offers high-level networking opportunities to share knowledge and build business.
